Clarification of News Report

We write in connection with your letter to Bloomberry Resorts Corporation (the "Corporation") dated 17 April 2015 seeking clarification and/or confirmation relating to the news article entitled "Bloomberry to spend at least $1 billion in South Korea project" published in The BusinessMirror on 17 April 2015 . The article reported in part that:

"Bloomberry Resorts Corp., a company controlled by port magnate Enrique K. Razon Jr., bared on Thursday plans to spend at least $1 billion at its casino and property-development venture in South Korea, scheduled to break ground by 2017.

Razon told reporters that the company is only waiting for the South Korean government to link the two properties that Bloomberry purchased at the start of the year to the islands of Silmi and Muui with a bridge.

'It's a multipurpose development. It's not just a casino and a hotel. There is a residential aspect [and] a commercial aspect. It's an entire planned sort of tourism community,' Razon said at the sidelines of the stockholders' meeting of the International Container Terminal Services Inc., a company that owns most of the country's major ports.

He said the gaming license alone costs $1 billion, roughly the price of its slot at the Entertainment City in Parañaque City, although the cost of building the South Korean project is much higher.

Razon, however, said there is a risk the South Korean government may not extend the license to Bloomberry but that Bloomberry will peruse the project nonetheless.

'Yes, there is that risk, in which case it will be purely a commercial development for tourism. The license is purely for the gaming component,' Razon said.

'It will still be more than $1 billion eventually because we have residential towers, you have hotels, a beach resort, because it's a beautiful beach property right within the city. It's a unique property,' he said.

Razon said the company may seek a local partner to provide them the expert knowledge they need.

We wish to clarify the statements above. The Chairman was talking about plans of Bloomberry Resorts Corporation (Bloom) for the 12.2 hectare Muui Island and 20.96 hectares Silmi Island properties in Korea which were acquired through Bloom's subsidiary Solaire Korea Co. Ltd.

As previously disclosed, Bloom intends to develop said properties into a leisure and tourism complex with entertainment facilities and mixed use development (residential and commercial). These properties are within the coverage of the Incheon Free Economic Zone. There is a bridge now under construction by the South Korean government and is expected to be completed by 2017 to connect Muui Island with the Incheon International Airport and the rest of Incheon Free Economic Zone.

Bloom is still working on the development plans for an application for a gaming license which will require an investment requirement of at least US$ 1 Billion.
